The realized project is strictly connected to the architecture. Our purpose like that of the architect was to create a new urban identity; light has the important task to serve as medium between city and institution, through its great evocative capabilities and its emotional charge, it will favour the aggregation of the different human and architectural realities which compose this part of the city. The magnificent glass covering of the hall, the great lantern will spread not only images and light but also colour. Through the employment of stained lighting sources each event will have its own light scenography: like the Empire State Building in New York, the new Palace of the Provincial Administration will follow the evolution of weeks, seasons and events with its variations of tone and colour. The big glass box will be the metronome, the calendar of the urban life, the breath of the city.
